They would not be slow to serve us out in the same manner, if we gave them the opportunity; so we were obliged to be continually on our guard. The guns were always loaded at night, and we stood regular half watches, starboard and larboard, the watches, starboard and larboard, the went to work to load and prepare out soon, either forward or aft, but same as we would have done at sea. You may well suppose that, after we found they had gold to sell, it was of more consequence to us than the sandal-wood or shells. We lay at anchor as long as any sovereigns were brought on board by the savages, and used every persuation to make them part with the last one they had. The captain naturally got the lion's share of them; for as soon as the savages Boots, Shoes and Hats, have had in hand more than three thousand pounds in gold when they stopped bringing it off to us. There couldn't have been more than four

"Do I still love?" Ask the bee
If he still loves the flower;
And of the flower demand if she
Loves sunshine and the shower;
And ask the bird if still he loves
The Joy that summer brings—
Soft airs, blue eyes and leafy groves,
That listens while he sings.
If bee, and flower, and birds say "Nay."
Then my love's false and fled away.

"Why do I love thee?" Ask the sea
Why it adores the moon;
And ask the queenly rose why she
Dotes on the month of June;
And ask the sun-flower why she turns
Her bosom to the sun
And all the dark nights fondly yearns
For her most cherished one.
If sun-flower, rose and sea reply.
